

son within his jurisdiction that his life, his liberty or his property shall not be taken from him without process of law.

"In a struggle between employers and employees, dynamite is said to have been used by the latter, resulting in the loss of life and the destruction of property. The perpetrators of this offense against the laws of God and man, and all others engaged in the conspiracy with them, should, after due trial and conviction, have had meted out to them the most rigorous punishment known to the law. This crime, added perhaps to others, led to the formation of a committee of citizens that, with the support of the military authority, departs from the State, without trial, persons suspected of belonging to the organization of which the perpetrators of the crime are supposed to be members. In both cases the reign of law gave way to the reign of terror."

"These illustrations present some odds and ends of the failure of government to protect the citizen and his property, which no one can justify the action of your convention in this regard, but made it its duty to call attention to the fact that constitutional guarantees are violated whenever a man is denied the right to labor, to acquire and to enjoy property, or to reside where his interests or inclination may determine; and the fulfillment of the assurance to rebuke and punish all denials of these rights, whether brought about by individuals or government agencies, should be enforced by every official and supported by every citizen."

"The essence of good government lies in strict observance of constitutional limitations, enforcement of law and order and rugged opposition to all encroachment upon the sovereignty of the people."

"The foregoing suggestions but emphasize the distinction which exists between our own and other forms of government. It has been well said, in substance, that there are but two powers in government, and the power of the sword, sustained by the hand that wields it, and the other the power of the law, sustained by an enlightened public sentiment. The difference in these powers is the difference between a republic—such as ours, based on law and a written constitution, supported by intelligence, virtue and patriotism—and a monarchy—sustained by force exerted by an individual, uncontrolled by laws other than those made or sanctioned by him; one represents constitutionalism, the other imperialism."

"The present tariff law is unjust in its operation, excessive OPERATION OF in many of its rates and so framed in particular instances as THE TARIFF IN— to exact inordinate profits from the people. As well understood EQUITABLE. we have seen that many prominent members of the Republican party, including leaders of the state conventions, have dared to voice the general sentiment on this subject. That party sees, however, that it is collectively able to harmonize only upon a plank that admits that revision may from time to time be necessary, but it is so phrased that it is expected to be satisfactory to those in favor of an increase of duty, to those who favor a reduction thereof, and to those opposed to any change whatever."

"Judged by the record of performance, rather than that of promise, on the part of that party in the past, it would seem as if the outcome, in the event of its success, would be to gratify the latter class. With absolute control of both the legislative and executive departments of the government since March 4, 1897, there has been neither reduction nor an attempt at reduction in tariff duties.

"It is not unreasonable to assume, in the light of that record, that a future Congress of that party will not undertake a revision of the tariff downward in the position that it shall receive an endorsement of its past course on that subject by the people."

"It is a fact and should be frankly conceded that should our party be successful in the coming contest, it would be unable to secure any modification in the tariff save that to which the Republican majority in the Senate may consent."

"While, therefore, we are unable to give assurances of relief to the people from such excessive duties as burden them, it is due to them that we should state our position to be in favor of a reasonable reduction of the tariff; that we believe that it is demanded by the best interests of both manufacturers and consumer, and that a wise and beneficial revision of the tariff can be accomplished as soon as both branches of Congress and an executive in favor of it are elected, without creating that sense of uncertainty and instability that has on other occasions manifested itself."

"This can be achieved by providing that such a reasonable period shall intervene between the date of the enactment of the statute making a revision and the date of its enforcement, as shall be deemed sufficient for the industry or business affected by such revision to adjust itself to the changes and new conditions imposed."

"So confident am I in the belief that the demand of the people for reform of the tariff is just that I indulge the hope that should a Democratic House of Representatives and a Democratic executive be chosen by the people, even a Republican Senate may heed the warning and consent to give at least some measure of relief to the people."

"The combinations, popularly called trusts, which aim to se-

FOSTERED BY those things that are employed upon the farm, in the factory and PROTECTION. in many other fields of industry, have been encouraged and stimulated by excessive tariff duties. These operate to furnish a substantial market in the necessities of eighty millions of people, by practically excluding competition. With so large a market and highly remunerative prices continuing long after the line of possible competition would naturally be reached, the temptation of all engaged in the same business to combine so as to prevent competition at home and a resulting reduction of prices, has proved irresistible in a number of cases.

"All men must agree that the net result of enacting laws that foster such initable conditions, is most unfortunate for the people as a whole, and it would seem as if all ought to agree that the effective remedy would be to appropriately modify the offending law. The growth of monopoly, of which complaint is justly made, cannot be laid at the doors of the courts of this country. The decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Appeals of this state and the courts of last resort in many states, warrant the assertion that the common law, as developed, affords a complete legal remedy against monopolies."

"The fact that they have multiplied in number and increased in power, has been due, not to the failure of the courts to apply the law when properly moved by administrative officials or private individuals, but to the failure of officials charged with the duty of enforcing the law to take the necessary procedure to procure the judgments of the courts in the appropriate jurisdiction, coupled with the fact that the legislative departments of some of our State Governments, as well as Congress in the manner already referred to, have failed to legislate, encourage their propagation."

"What is needed—in addition to the passage of laws reviving the tariff duties to a reasonable basis—is not so much other and different laws, as officials having both the disposition and the courage to enforce existing law. While this is my view of the scope of the common law, if it should be made to appear that it is a mistaken one, then I favor such further legislation within constitutional limitations as will give the people a just and full measure of protection."

"It is difficult to understand how any citizen of the United States could less much a descendant of Revolutionary stock, can tolerate the thought of permanently denying the right of self-government to our descendants' reverence and devotion for a government by the people, while denying ultimately that right to the inhabitants of distant countries, whose territory we have acquired either by purchase or by force? Can we say to the Filipinos, 'Your lives, your liberty and your property may be taken from you without due process of law for all time.' And expect we will long glory in that feature of Magna Charta, which has become incorporated, in substance and effect, into the Constitution of every State, as well as into the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States?"

"Can we hope for the respect of the civilized world, while proudly guaranteeing to every citizen of the United States that no law shall be made or enforced which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, or deny to any person the equal protection of the laws, and at the same time not only deny similar rights to the inhabitants of distant lands, but take away from them the right of trial by jury, which places their lives and the disposition of their property in the keeping of those whom we send to them to be their governors? We shall certainly rue it as a nation if we make any such attempt."

"Viewing the question even from the standpoint of national selfishness, there is no prospect that the twenty millions of dollars expended in the purchase of the Islands and the six hundred and fifty millions said to have been since disbursed will ever come back to us. The accident of war brought the Philippines into our possession and we are not at liberty to disregard the responsibility which thus came to us, but that responsibility will be best subserved by preparing the islanders as rapidly as possible for self-government and giving to them the assurances that it will come as soon as they are reasonably prepared for it."

"There need be no fear that the assertion so often made AMERICA of late, that we have now become a world power, will then be A WORLD POWER without support. Ours is a world power, and as such it must be A CENTURY. maintained, but deny that it is not already that the United States has attained that eminence. Our country because a world power over all the world, the people established a free government, the source of which authority, strength, and was naturally to proceed, from the will of the people themselves. It grew as a world power as sturdy citizens, to whose natural interests were added immigrants from the old world seeking to obtain here the liberty and prosperity denied them in their own countries, spread over the face of the land, reduced the prairies and forests to cultivation, built cities, constructed highways and railroads, till now agitated which at the fact of the government numbered only three millions in population, and from ocean to ocean and the lakes to the gulf, the country is the abode of a free prosperous people, advanced in the highest degree in the learning and arts of civilization. It is the liberty, the advancement and the prosperity of its citizens, not any career of conquest, that make the country a world power."

"This condition we owe to the bounty of Providence, unfolded in the great natural resources of the country, to the wisdom of our fathers manifested in the form of government established by them, to the energy, industry, moral character and law-abiding spirit of the people themselves."

"AMERICA In extending our domains in foreign lands, or desirous of securing NOT A MILITARY natural advantages, however great, by force; but a people's COUNTRY. loving peace, not only for ourselves, but for all the nations of the earth."

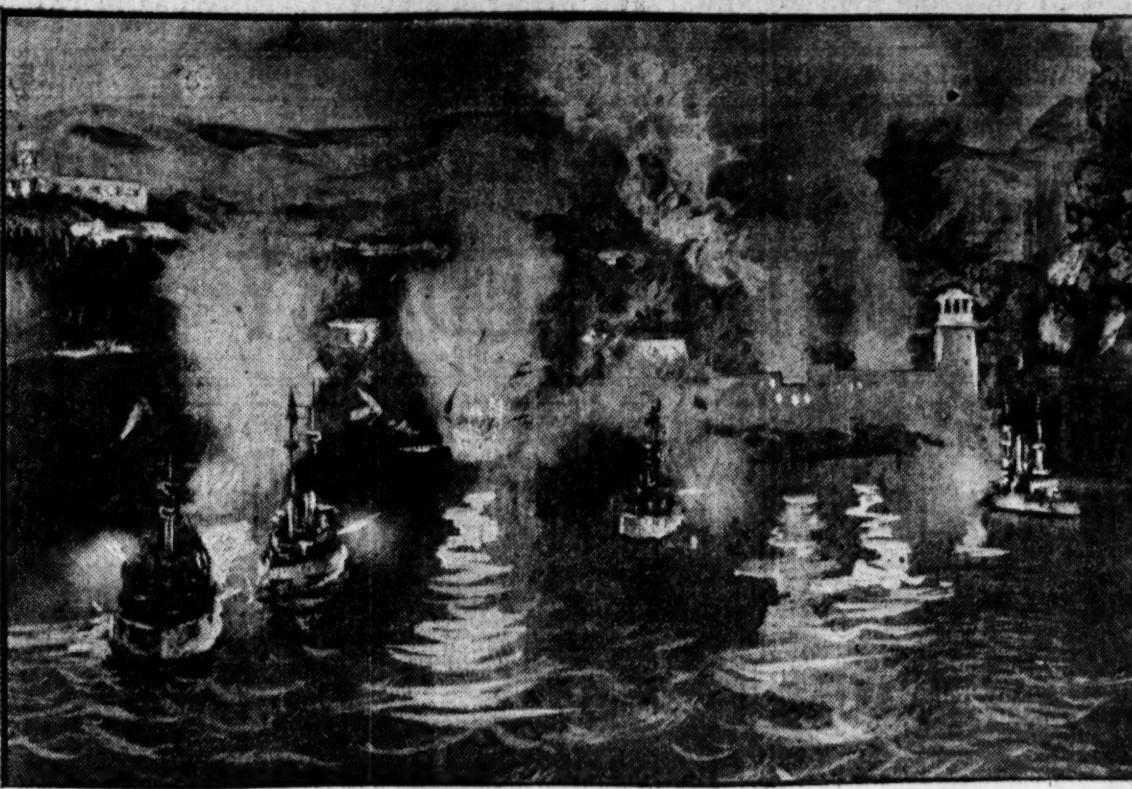

"The display of great military armaments may please the eye and, for the moment, excite the pride of the citizen, but it cannot bring to the country the brains, brawn and muscle of a single immigrant, nor induce the investment here of a dollar of capital."

"Of course such armament as may be necessary for the security of the country and the protection of the rights of its citizens, at home or abroad, must be maintained. Any other course would not be only false economy, but pusillanimous."

"I protest, however, against the feeling, now too far prevalent, that by reason of the commanding position we have assumed in the world, we must take part in the disputes and brawls of foreign countries; and that because we have grown great we should intervene in every important question that arises in other parts of the world. I also protest against the erection of any such military establishment as would be required to maintain the country in that attitude. We should confine our national activities solely to matters in which the rights of the country or of our citizens are directly involved. That is not a situation of isolation, but of independence."

"The government of the United States was organized solely for the people of the United States. While it was contemplated that this country should become a refuge for the oppressed of every land, who might be fit to discharge the duties of our citizenship, and while we have always sympathized with the people of every nation in their struggles for self-government, the government was not created for a career of political or civilizing evangelization in foreign countries, among alien races by intervention in their affairs. The most efficient work we can do in uplifting the people of other countries is by the presentation of a happy, prosperous, self-governing nation as an ideal to be emulated, a model to be followed. The general occupation of our citizens in the arts of peace, or the absence of large military armaments, tends to impair neither patriotism nor physical courage, and for the truth of this I refer the young men of today to the history of the Civil War.

"For fifty years, with the exception of the war with Mexico, this country had been at peace, with a standing army most of the time of less than ten thousand men. He who thinks that the nation had grown effeminate during that period, should read the casualty rolls of the armies on either side at Shiloh, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg, at Stone River and Chickamauga. I would be the last man to pluck a single laurel from the brows of any one of the military heroes to whom this country owes its birth, but I know that their most heroic deeds preceded infinitely more from devotion to the country than from martial spirit.

""I have already proceeded at too great length, other questions suggested in the platform, must await my letter of acceptance."

"Mr. Chairman: In most graceful speech, you have reminded me of the great responsibility, as well as the great honor of the nomination bestowed upon me by the convention you represent this day. Be assured that both are appreciated—so keenly appreciated, that I am humbled in their presence."

"I accept, gentlemen of the committee, the nomination, and if the action of the convention shall be indorsed by an election by the people, I will, God helping me, give to the discharge of the duties of that exalted office the best service of which I am capable and at the end of the term retire to private life. Several reasons might be advanced for this position, but the one leading with me is that I am fully persuaded that no independent of that office could ever be placed in a situation of possible temptation to consider what the effect of action taken by him in an administrative matter of great importance might have upon his political fortunes."

"Questions of momentous consequence to all of the people have been in the past and will be in the future presented to the president for determination, and in approaching their consideration, as well as in weighing the facts and the arguments bearing upon them, he should be unembarrassed by any possible thought of the influence his decision may have upon anything whatever that may affect him personally."

"I make this statement, not in criticism of any of our presidents from Washington down who have either held office for two terms or sought to succeed themselves, for the arguments can be advanced in support of the re-election of any president. It is simply my judgment that the interests of his country are more so vast, and the questions presented are frequently of such overpowering magnitude to the people that it is indispensable to the maintenance of a befitting attitude before the people, not only that the chief magistrate should be independent, but that that independence should be known of all men."

TYPOGRAPHERS HOLD SHIRTWAIST SESSION

Off Went Coats When Lively Business Meeting Got Down to Work.

DEFEAT SEVERAL AMENDMENTS

Vote Down Proposed Weekly Strike Contribution—Will Continue to "Follow Style."

The members of the International Typographical Union held a shirtwaist session Wednesday forenoon. There was such a good attendance that the meeting was held in Convention Hall, at the world's fair, that it became uncomfortably warm and the coats of the delegates were shedded off.

The roll call was omitted and the convention got down to business without delay.

The consideration of the report of the committee on laws was continued. There was little discussion until an amendment was reached which the committee had reported favorably, providing that printers should "follow copy" instead of "follow style," and get extra compensation for making corrections in copy.

The unfavorable report of the committee was sustained and the printers will continue to "follow style."

A motion requiring union printers to buy only union label goods at union establishments was defeated.

An amendment providing for the payment of $7 a week to members on strike was defeated, President Lynch stating that the revenue would not justify it.

As to the proposed initiation fee and the minimum scale of wages were defeated and these questions were left in the hands of the local unions.

When nomination for the next meeting place were called for, Toronto, Canada, and Columbus, O., were named. Telegrams were sent from the names of Toronto and that nomination was made by Delegate James and seconded by Delegate Draper of Ottawa.

In support of the nomination of Columbus telegrams were read from Gov. Harlan of Indiana and Capt. Clegg, president of the local union, the South Side Business and Improvement Association, the Mayfield and the Board of Trade. The question will be settled by a vote Thursday morning.

During the session President Lynch said a telegram from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, congratulating the I. T. U. on its growth and prosperity, and hoping that there would be a continuance of harmony in its ranks.

This is Printers' Day at the World's Fair.

The management of the Boer war has arranged a program including several special features for the entertainment of the printers.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon a program was carried out in Festival Hall in honor of the members of the Typographical Union. There were addresses by a number of men of prominence, and much excellent music. A selection from Gilmant Intermission program, and was followed with an address by M. R. H. Witter, chairman of the general arrangements committee. President Francis delivered a short address of welcome, followed by an organ solo by L. Thiele, "Theme Variations and Finale." Mrs. Leonora M. Lake gave an address, after which an overture from the opera of "Mignon," on the violin and piano was given by Francisco J. Talavera, Louis G. Koenig and Adelard Badiello. W. J. Moore made the next address. An organ solo, scherzo in E major, by E. Gigout, followed, after which Cyril Waddington spoke.

The "Torando Song" from the opera of "Carmen" was sung by Manuel R. Malpica, baritone, and the musical finale closed with an address by M. R. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union.

At Tuesday night's session the printers reconsidered their action of the morning session, setting aside the resolution, by which the priority rule was done away with in the Boer war, relations with his employer in the composing room in the same condition as for many years. The rule, in substance, was that when the printing room force has been reduced, the foreman, in adding to the force at any time shall give the preference to those who may have been forced out by such reduction.

Before taking a recess, the report of the committee on laws was again taken up.

The printers reported unfavorably upon the proposed rule to forbid members of the union becoming members of other unions during the term of their apprenticeship.

The discussion upon the demand made by the typographers that organized units of the union become members of the International Typographical Union, was submitted to the committee on the typewriters, a special feature introduced in the performance, after which a camp reception was held by Gen. Cronje and Gen. Viljoen.

In addition a very interesting visit will be made to the Kaffir Kraal, showing the life of the Kaffir Kraal, a grand nephew of the late King Cetewayo. In the Kaffir Kraal the type will have an excellent opportunity of making a primitive tour, which correspondence is carried on amongst the savage tribes of South Africa.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY LISTENS TO REPORTS

The woman's auxiliary, the International Typographical Union, has decided to hold a meeting each morning during the time the union is in session. A meeting was held this morning from 9 o'clock until 12, but little business was transacted. A few committee reports were heard, and after one or two short addresses an adjournment was unanimous. It is expected that by that time active business of the auxiliary will be taken up.

Wednesday afternoon the visitors were the guests of the local auxiliary at a reception in the State hall of the Missouri building. The meeting opened at 10 o'clock, and 200 were present. A social program was carried out and refreshments were served.

More Than They Can Butcher Is Received at the Chicago Yards.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Despite all efforts of committeemen, today's receipts of live stock were so heavy as to astonish the packers. There were 23,000 cattle, 23,000 hogs and 15,000 sheep.

At the New York packing plants closed by the strike, the disposal of all the receipts was admitted to be a difficult problem.

Prize fights for the entertainment of non-union workmen at the stock yards may cease as the result of an accident that occurred in the interior of the stock yards on Aug. 9. The fight ring was in the interior of the stock yards on Pack Avenue, near West Forty-third street. Daniel Smith, employee at a packing house by Morris & Co., was pitted against Peter Ford. Both men are colored. Smith struck on the head, and such a blow that his arm was shattered and the program was declared off. The police are looking for the man who struck him.

The "Tondoros Song" from the opera of "Carmen" was sung by Manuel R. Malpica, baritone, and the musical finale closed with an address by M. R. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union.

At Tuesday night's session the printers reconsidered their action of the morning session, setting aside the resolution, by which the priority rule was done away with in the Boer war, relations with his employer in the composing room in the same condition as for many years.

The rule, in substance, was that when the printing room force has been reduced, the foreman, in adding to the force at any time shall give the preference to those who may have been forced out by such reduction.

Before taking a recess, the report of the committee on laws was again taken up.

The printers reported unfavorably upon the proposed rule to forbid members of the union becoming members of other unions during the term of their apprenticeship.

The discussion upon the demand made by the typographers that organized units of the union become members of the International Typographical Union, was submitted to the committee on the typewriters, a special feature introduced in the performance, after which a camp reception was held by Gen. Cronje and Gen. Viljoen.

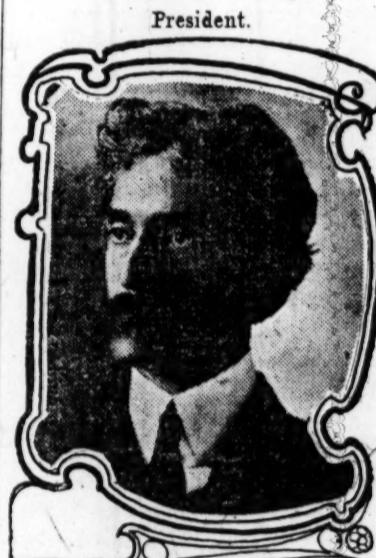

In addition a very interesting visit will be made to the Kaffir Kraal, showing the life of the Kaffir Kraal, a grand nephew of the late King Cetewayo. In the Kaffir Kraal the type will have an excellent opportunity of making a primitive tour, which correspondence is carried on amongst the savage tribes of South Africa.

BURIAL WILL BE PRIVATE: CITY OFFICES TO BE CLOSED.

Acting Mayor Joseph L. Hornsby issued a proclamation Wednesday directing that flags on all public buildings be placed at half-mast Thursday in respect to the memory of Senator Vest.

He will be buried at Nokomis, Ill., from 8 to 10 o'clock Thursday morning while his funeral procession is moving from Union Station to Belfontaine Cemetery.

The body will arrive from Sedalia at 6:30 Thursday morning. It will be accompanied by Mrs. Vest, her daughter, Mrs. Vest, her son, Edward E. Selsky, president of the Missouri Commission Co., whose home is in Ferguson, St. Louis, Mo. The body will be laid to rest in the Jackson residence, 1019 Thornby place, but will remain at Union Station until 8 o'clock.

It is announced that the family desires the funeral to be private and, should this be the final decision, the mourners will pay their respects at the family home in Missouri merely by assembling at Union Station at 9 o'clock when the funeral procession will be ready for Belfontaine Cemetery.

Senator Vest will be buried by the side of his older son, George, whose death occurred in Washington earlier this year.

The active pall-bearers will be chosen from the personal friends of Alex. Vest. They will be Paul Cook, John L. L. Thompson, Campbell Cummings, C. Jackson, and one other not yet selected.

The members of the large committee of representative Missourians appointed by Gov. Danner to attend the funeral have been invited to the service. The chairman of the committee, to meet at the Southern hotel at 9 o'clock Thursday morning and proceed to Union station in a

STRIKE BREAKERS ROUTED BY MOB

Kansas City Packing House Employees Throw Nonunion Men's Baggage Into River and Burn Cars.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 10.—A carload of strike-breakers beat a hasty retreat from the meat yards when the train which they were taken into the Schwarzchild & Sublette meat packing plant was surrounded by a mob of 200 strikers and sympathizers. Some of the imported men were chased several blocks, but there seemed to be no positive determination to injure them and all escaped.

After dispersing the strike-breakers, the mob threw the baggage into the river and set fire to the car in which the men were riding. It was part of a freight train of fifteen cars.

The police arrived before the fire had caused much damage and dispersed the mob. No arrests were made.

UNION MEN SAY LABOR IS SMALLEST ITEM OF COST.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Homer D. Call, president of the executive board of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' and Butchers' Workers' Association, issued a long statement today in defense of the union's strike against the packers. According to the statement, the packers are now trying to reduce the wages of nonunion men, who form 9 per cent of the union membership, from 45 cents per hour to the old rate of 15 cents.

The average weekly wage, the statement says, is $6.50. These figures, it is asserted, are compiled from reports of men engaged in killing meat in the country.

The statement shows that the average cost of labor for killing and dressing a bull, which weighs 1,200 pounds, is 44 cents. The average bull weighs 700 pounds. The labor cost is but six cents, or about one cent per pound.

On the average, the cost of raising a pig is 10 cents per pound. The labor cost is therefore, six cents thousand.

It is claimed that labor is to blame for the increase in meat prices in the last four years.

"Can the packers afford to pay 15½ cents an hour? If they can, why should they be allowed to reduce the wages?"

CABINET SEEKS TO BUST PHONE TRUST

Increased Quarterly Bills Starts Official Movement for Government System in Washington.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Extortion as practised by the local telephone company at the last Cabinet meeting at the White House, after looking with awe upon the last bills rendered by the corporation, reached the unanimous conclusion that the government was being "gouged," and took steps looking to the establishment of a system for the use of the department's money. Roosevelt appointed a committee of one to investigate the subject and report to the Cabinet the probable cost of a satisfactory settlement.

A few days ago, when the telephone company rendered its quarterly batch of bills, it was discovered that the cost of long distance calls in the various bureaus, it was found that the sum had increased to the extent, in some instances, of nearly 100 per cent. In the White House alone there was an increase of more than $50 in the bill, and the White House is only a small link in the chain of the State, War, Treasury, State, Navy, Interior and Agricultural Departments and the Department of Commerce and Labor footed up many hundreds of dollars.

FATHER-IN-LAW NOT FAVORED BY ELKINS

West Virginia Senator Reports on Situation in His State and Promises Strong Fight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Senator Elkins dropped in to see his colleague, Senator Scott, and after a talk with him was carried to Chairman Cortelyou. He described the situation in West Virginia to Mr. Cortelyou, and said that he had no reason why the Republicans there should not discuss politics about the state. He thought that throughout the state they were going to make a united fight.

Senator Elkins was an interesting figure among the politicians. He is smooth-faced, blue-haired and shrewd of eye. He spent some time in going over the situation in his home state with Mr. Cortelyou. The two men were on the chairmen of the committees of their father-in-law, Senator Davis, for vice-president last interest.

Chairman Cortelyou presided over his first meeting of the executive committee at 11:30 o'clock. The members present were Senator Scott, Gov. Franklin M. Dyer, Cornell, Elkins and William G.

Cardozo. The meeting lasted an hour and a half, and, according to the general discussion, the session was to certain immediate questions which had to be settled. Committee man Brooker of Connecticut was present.

His FRIENDS GUessed RIGHT.
Alfred J. Guerdan and Miss Schlette Were Married Sunday.

The Post-Dispatch, the couple, after procuring a marriage license, went to French Lick Springs, Indiana, to meet their friends and their relatives. They were married Sunday morning by Rev. Pedro Ilgen, pastor of the Holy Ghost German Roman Catholic Church of French Lick, Indiana, and Page boulevard.

Tuesday night Mr. Guerdan's father wrote him a congratulating letter. The couple will reside at 353 Hartford street.

MANY PROTEST ON THE "BIG STICK"

Roosevelt Curbs His Warlike Course With the Sultan When Votes Are Threatened.

HAY EXPECTS A COMPROMISE

Instead of Seizing Port, Ultimate Action Now Expected Is Severance of Diplomatic Relations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Secretary Hay has been advised that the Sultan of Turkey is weakening, and he believes now that the American demands will be acceded to very soon. But the wily Sultan has "backed and filled" so often on this matter that the secretary's "belief" is very far from being a conviction.

President Roosevelt's openly hostile policy, which he mapped out in advance with the co-operation of Secretary Hay, has been so strongly objected to by conservative advisers that he is undecided whether, in the event of the Sultan continuing obdurate, the port of Smyrna shall be seized or diplomatic relations sharply severed by recalling Minister Leishman and giving Cheikib Bey, the acting Turkish minister in Washington, his passport.

One course or the other will be followed as soon as after the proposed squadron reaches Smyrna in the event of the Sultan not heeding the ultimatum, which is to be delivered to him.

It is generally believed that the President's proposed seizure of Smyrna and holding it until the Sultan comes to terms, and it developed at the cabinet meeting yesterday that the members were likewise opposed to it. They told the President that to seize a port would be going to war, and such action, they said, would be regarded by the country at large as unsafe. Their arguments were put so strongly that Mr. Roosevelt weakened considerably on warlike policy, and he now is seriously thinking of going further than severing diplomatic relations if the Sultan proves stubborn. Any further action would then depend upon the attitude of Turkey.

An old colored woman went in one of our stores last week and asked the clerk: "Is you got any soda crackers?"

Whereupon the clerk replied: "No; Uneeda Biscuit."

The old woman became highly indignant at the insinuation, and informed him that she didn't "need no biscuits," and had a whole spider full at home, "thank you."

Body of August Kull Taken From River at the Foot of Elwood Street.

Mrs. Paulina Lorwin will today take charge of the body of her brother, August Kull of 1938 Cherokee street, which was found in the river at the foot of Elwood street Tuesday afternoon, as told in late editions of the Post-Dispatch. The police are now of the opinion that it was Kull who was seen to leap from Elwood bridge Monday night as he was approached by a man driving a car. The man was driving across the rail throwing his garments in the water. The man reached Kull and made him leap to his death. The Kraft brothers reside at 1816 Schild avenue.

Kull's body answers the description of the man the Krafts saw. His body was identified by Chris Meyer, with whom he lived. Kull was employed at the Kraft bakery, and fellow-workmen say that for several days he had seemed depondent.

THE DESIGNER

"A Magazine of Real Use to Woman"
September Number—Out To-day!

I THINK The Designer is a little different in its accomplishment, from any other of America's magazines. It, first of all, presents practical, tasteful fashions that are not too difficult for reproduction by the average woman, and supplements this by articles as possible each month on subjects of especial interest to those who have adopted the busy occupation of spare moments, or as a means of support—hence dressmaking, millinery, embroidery, needlework to the toilette, embroidery and fancy work of all kinds are given prominent position in The Designer.

After them in importance rank the three departments edited by our readers themselves: "What Women are Doing," which encourages those who have to make their own way in the world, by presenting incidents showing how others have successfully overcome obstacles as formidable as any that lie in their paths; "Helps Along the Way," and "The Mother's Club."

I believe that every shareholder in a business is far more concerned for its welfare than are outsiders, and for this reason I have closely allied many of our readers and subscribers by making them co-editors of these departments, which gives the more or less isolated woman in the country a chance to run figuratively speaking) to her neighbor's for a little friendly talk on the easiest way to accomplish the household tasks, or to manage the babies, or as to opportunities for earning a few dollars in pleasant ways.

There are many other regular departments, of course, and fiction and articles of general interest; but the magazine itself can best describe itself. I think I can add truthfully that The Designer is a cheerful, practical magazine which earnestly tries to help those who want to help themselves.

GHOULS PLUNDER BODIES OF DEAD

Remains of 74 Victims of Bridge Horror Have Been Recovered—71 Identified.

TWENTY-EIGHT OTHERS MISSING.

FUNERAL DAY IN PUEBLO WITH LONG PROCESSIONS OF BEREAVED LOVED ONES TO ALL CEMETERIES.

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 10.—The beauty of today was marred for hundreds of Pueblo citizens, who witnessed the passing of friends and relatives whose bodies were being conveyed to their final resting places.

Early in the day, all preparations had been completed for the funerals. The undertakers and liverymen were severely taxed in supplying hearses and vehicles, but all were finally accommodated and soon long lines were wending their way to the various cemeteries. Many bodies were sent to other cities last night and to-day.

Downtown the streets were crowded with persons watching the processions and business was almost at a standstill.

The search for victims which has been so faithfully conducted the past two days was resumed at dawn today, but the chances of finding any more dead or fainter as time passes, although many persons supposed to be victims are as yet unaccounted for.

The work of identifying the victims has been made with difficulty, but, perhaps, the names of those in other similar cases, have been so much intermingled and duplicated with trifling variations until the lists have been swelled to 90, 100 even more. The coroner, as reported this morning, with the addition of the bodies recovered yesterday, make the list of identified dead 71 with three still unidentified.

The coroner's jury was brought together again this morning and resumed its investigation of the bodies which had been collected, but has been of little consequence. It resulted, however, in bringing out the fact yesterday that a party of ghouls had taken off its most mournful work by officers, who say, however, that they secured little plunder.

Bringing of bodies for ransom has also developed.

Bodies of victims of the disaster have been shipped to points outside this state and to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, town not known at general offices of Denver & Rio Grande Railroad.

Leading Anti-Imperialist Says Too Much Money Was Spent in Exploiting "Dependencies."

Fiske Warren of Boston, a member of the executive committee of the Anti-Imperialistic League, of which Edward Atkinson is president, is at the Washington hotel.

Mr. Warren says that the report that the Anti-Imperialistic League had communicated with Judge Parker urging him to return to the U.S. in favor of anti-imperialism in his speech accepting the nomination of the Democratic platform was erroneous.

"A lady asked me if I liked our country," said Mr. Warren, "and I said, 'Yes.' Then she asked me if I liked our clothes, and they fell upon their lunch with sniffs of contempt.

The main column left Springfield, Ill., early Wednesday morning, and 61 automobiles fell in behind the pilot machine driven by W. B. Hubert and John Speck, whose car 48 is a sort of bell weather for the 110 mile run down from the Illinois capital to St. Louis.

The automobile army coming to the national automobile meet at the World's Fair found the city before dark today.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon a Philadelphia car, which went W. B. Saenger and J. J. Langley, passed through East St. Louis and crossed the Eads bridge.

LEGACY AWAITS LOST WIFE

She Was Adopted at Birth by Prosperous Parents and Lost Sight Of.

WOOSTER, O., Aug. 10.—A fortune of $12,000 awaits a woman who was born in the poorhouse of Wayne County, about 10 years ago, if her case is located.

In September, 1878, Mrs. David Gash, wife of a resident of this city, was committed to the county infirmary. A few days later she became the mother of a daughter. Soon after the mother died, about the time that the wife of the poorhouse came into the world the wife of a wealthy farmer became the mother of a daughter. The babe died within a few hours. The father of this child was anxious to see her. He was a particular friend of Charles Gash, son of one of the board of infirmary directors, and through Mr. Gash got possession of Mrs. Lillian's baby. The man who found her gave it to his wife as their own.

Whether the husband ever told his wife of his secret deception is not known, but the secret grew to be notorious. Mr. Gash, on different occasions, saw her as a young woman and told the story of her parentage to her. He also told her the name of the foster father living he can supply the information, but whether or not he will be willing to do so is a question.

Aged Mathias Svoboda Ended His Life in a Shed.

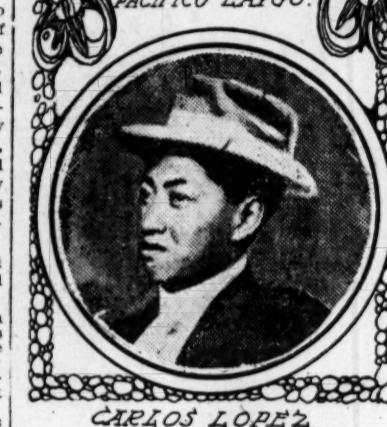

An inquest was held yesterday over the body of Mathias Svoboda, 75 years old, who was found dead in a shed at his home, 1122 Pennsylvania avenue, late Tuesday night by his daughter, Mary, who had missed him from the search for her father. The daughter found his body hanging from a ladder in the shed. He had used a heavy twine. She notified the relatives, who cut down the body and took charge of it. Members of the family state they cannot afford to pay for an funeral. Mathias Svoboda had become temporarily demented.

GREAT PROCESSION TO BE MADE ACROSS EADS BRIDGE

Then on to the World's Fair It Will Move—Enthusiasts Who Ran Ahead of the Main Body Will Not Receive Certificates.

What is? Is that Aurora's dust
Rising east? That mighty gust!
Heav'n help us, no! No chariot that
Which winds across the fertile flat,
Its length as sinuous as a dragon's:
That's sixty big skidooles wagons.

The automobile army coming to the national automobile meet at the World's Fair independence, with direct or indirect connection with America, was the sentiment of Student Pacifico Laygo, when he asked concerning the future of the Philippines:

"Philippines is one of the brightest of the 150 Filipino students now quartered in the Cuartel of the Philippine reservation at the Cavalry Barracks, San Francisco, and will remain in this country to study medicine, engineering, law, etc., and the Spanish language."

They reported that the main body was not far behind, and would reach St. Louis during the afternoon.

The main column left Springfield, Ill., early Wednesday morning, and 61 automobiles fell in behind the pilot machine driven by W. B. Hubert and John Speck, whose car 48 is a sort of bell weather for the 110 mile run down from the Illinois capital to St. Louis.

They thundered across and darted in upon Washington avenue. A few horses reared, and a pony slipped and climbed the rail, but no one was injured.

The automobiles had many adventures since they set out from many far-off roads. They were held up by mud, and some of them stuck in mud holes.

They reported that it was the driver of the automobile that did the damage. He suggested that the mud might have painted it some other color, at least.

Auto Freightens

Horse to Death.

One of these occurred Tuesday near Lincoln, Ill. A horse fell dead in the harness while one of the big road devils was running him. The animal did his best to save his life, but the poor brute had never before seen a real road, and suddenly the mud overcame him. The owner tried to get even by causing the arrest of the driver of the next machine in the procession, but a son of the owner rode alongside and anyone should have been arrested if that was the driver of the automobile that did the damage. He suggested that the mud might have painted it some other color, at least.

The Buckeyes and the Hoosiers have been lost for several days. It has been supposed that they are cruising around in the deep corn between the Wabash and the Cahokia Creek, and that they would make Edwardsville Wednesday morning. A reception committee, consisting of Dr. E. M. Senseney, W. W. Leathers and wife, Preston Dorris, A. C. Halsey, John French, Albert Lambert and D. Garrison, went to the Union Hotel in Springfield Tuesday night to meet the column from Boston, New York and other cities in the East.

Mr. Lamb says that the main fleet of machines may appear off the east end of the Eads bridge any time this afternoon, and that they will engage in mass maneuvers over there until the laggards come up.

Then they will move in majestic procession across the bridge, and the chug-chug of the road motor will fill all that part of the Mississippi valley.

Hogg is not inclined to root for Parker, but Texas will vote right.

In Mr. Walbridge's mayoralty record there is comfort for anti-reformers.

It is organized labor that is paid the best wages. How would labor organize fare if he had nothing but high tariffs to depend upon?

Perhaps it would be wise in the Democratic State Central Committee to keep Senator Stone off the stump. He would remind the voters of the alliance between the machine bosses and the lobby, and of the Cook-Allen connection.

THE COOK-ALLEN BLUNDER.

In an interview, published in the Kansas City Star, Sunday, Circuit Attorney Folk said:

"The Democratic party has adopted a platform declaring unrelenting warfare on corruption, and repudiating the support of corruptionists. I shall do my best to carry the principles of that platform into effect. I am running on this platform, not on the other candidates."

"I do not propose to defend anything wrong."

This utterance of the Democratic candidate for governor emphasizes the blunder of the Democratic convention, in nominating Cook and Allen on the Folk ticket. Mr. Folk is compelled to explain that he is not running on the other candidates but on an anti-corruption platform, which condemns the records of the two candidates of the corporation lobby.

If Mr. Folk does not propose to defend anything wrong, he is debarred from defending the records of Cook and Allen, one of whom took part in a boodle deal exposed by Folk, and served as a lobbyist for various measures, and both of whom served the franchise corporations by refusing to compel them to bear their fair share of taxation.

If the anti-boodle, anti-lobby cause, represented by Mr. Folk, is to triumph; if his administration is not to be hampered by the old lobby ring, Cook and Allen must be defeated. The election of the Democratic Presidential ticket, and of the Democratic state ticket, with the exception of these two ring candidates, would be a conspicuous demonstration of the honesty, intelligence and patriotism of the Missouri Democrats.

Governor Dickey has issued a proclamation requesting that the flags on all public buildings be displayed at half mast and that public offices be closed during the funeral hour of the late Senator Vest as a fitting tribute to the memory of one of Missouri's greatest sons. But it would be equally fitting, if the people of St. Louis, where he finds his last resting place, should observe the occasion in some proper mode—by suspending business during the funeral hour wherever practicable, and by reflection on Vest's character and virtue and his public career. Mr. Vest was a man of the people in the best sense. He believed in them; he believed in their health and intelligence, and loyalty to the good and true. When such a man passes away the sun sets on less virtue than the morning saw. It is right that every citizen should show his appreciation of Mr. Vest's public service by some visible token of his sense of loss.

CHURCH BUILDING IDEAS IN KANSAS.

Kansas, where new ideas go to get born, brings out an innovation in church building.

At Concordia they are erecting a plain, square house, consisting of two stories and a basement, surrounded by a large veranda. The auditorium is on the first floor, part of the second to be used as a gallery. The remainder of the second floor is to be taken up with parlors, reading rooms and class rooms. In the basement are to be a kitchen and dining room and rooms for social gatherings. The new church will be open seven days in the week, twenty-four hours in the day.

This seems to be a radical application of the club idea. Its success as a church depends entirely upon the spirit which pervades the house. This must be the same in the kitchen as in the auditorium. The parlors must be at one with the altar if the house is to be, in fact, a house of worship.

It is an interesting speculation in church methods. Perhaps it will generally be considered unpromising. But Kansas has made several unpromising ideas go. Perhaps this is to be one of the going kind.

The banks have the laugh on the Kansas City doctor who kept his $650 at home. The thief who got it may by this time have taken the precaution to deposit part of it in some financial institution.

M. PLEHVE'S LIBERALISM.

The Plehve interview published in the Sunday Post-Dispatch by Mr. George Harden was the last public utterance of the ill-fated minister and one of the very few addresses to the press through the press which the minister ever made.

It is not convincing at the best. In the light of what happened a few days later it reads like a trifling attempt to deceive.

"The Nihilist is in reality a bogey," said Mr. Plehve, "and not a very extensive bogey."

But a week subsequent to this he was dead, done to death by the Nihilists whose conspiracies, he boasted, were mere moonshine.

M. Plehve told Mr. Harden that Russia was a democracy, trying to befool the wits of the world by loose talk about local assemblies. "There is no violent dissatisfaction among the people," he said. "The people love the Czar."

Then why are the Czar and his ministers guarded so closely? Why have three ministers been assassinated within a year? Such a condition of terror can be produced only by widespread dissatisfaction or widespread homicidal mania. Will any Russian pretend to say it is the latter?

The truth is poor Plehve found out that he could no longer buy the wits of the world and this foolish attempt at the teachings of Washington.

Secrecy does not pay in Russia any better than in America. Publicity is the guarantee of order as well as liberty. It is a pity that in this new departure M. Plehve had nothing sounder to offer than the sophistry he gave Mr. Harden.

Trusts have their troubles. The Fertilizer Trust had to pay a Morgan syndicate 28 per cent when it borrowed $4,500,000 to save itself. Of course, it expects to get back some of this from people who have to buy fertilizers.

A SPENDTHRIFT POLICY.

The statement of government expenditures in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, shows unprecedented extravagance.

The total expenditures since President Roosevelt took office to the end of his term, actual and estimated at the treasury, amount to $2,614,724,019.18, which is greater by $833,024,802.75 than for the four years of Cleveland's second administration.

The outgo of President Roosevelt's first fiscal year exceeded Mr. McKinley's first year by $107,942,248.83. For the last fiscal year of the Roosevelt administration, the expenses will exceed McKinley's last year by $105,865,885.06.

President Roosevelt's naval establishment has cost $231,000,000 more than President Cleveland's, while the army in these strenuous four years cost $284,000,000 more than under Mr. Cleveland.

We preach with condescension against the standing armies of Europe. But our military expenses, including pensions, exceed those of Great Britain, France or Germany.

These facts cannot be juggled away. Nor can their meaning be perverted or twisted.

The Roosevelt administration is too strenuous—especially in its military ambitions. Our army and navy, kept within the bounds of common sense and national need in pre-Rooseveltian days, now seem to be regarded as needs in themselves.

The very best place for the people's money is in the people's pocket, and only so much of it should be taken in taxation as is needed to maintain the efficiency of the government.

The strength of a nation is not in its fleets and armies, but in the brain and heart, bone and muscle of its people, and every expense drawn from the people to maintain a showy military establishment is just that much taken from their strength. Extravagance is the first step in national decay.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

NEGLECTED STREET LIGHTS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I wish you would draw the columns of your valuable paper to the attention of the Inspector or whoever's business it is of attending to putting out the incandescent lights in streets and alleys at night has passed. It is a shame to see those lights burn all day as well as at night, and of course somebody has to pay for it, and you know it is the tax-payer.

These lights have been put out in a month either night or day, but are left burning incessantly. What is the reason for this? Is it for collecting a salary to do their work and never attending to it?

A CITIZEN AND TAXPAYER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Great is the Fair! It is unquestionably the biggest and grandest exhibition the world over witnessed, and richly merits an attendance. But if we were not to be written there are too many visitors. The expenditure of $25,000 more would supply sufficient resting places for the sick-broke and foot-sore visitors. Can't you help the tired ones?

THE PEOPLE WILL DECIDE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There is a very good remedy to mar the political game of the inaction in regard to Cook and Allen. It is simple but very effective. Every honest Democrat should scratch on election day the names of the two objectionable candidates and place instead the name of the Labor man. By this means the voter will gain by this process not only in moral power but also counterbalance the loss of votes from the other side. Hence it would be unwise to let the people of the other side win. Mr. Folk would decline the nomination and thus disappoint the real reformers, who are solid Democrats, or more precisely, disgusted Republicans, would like to see Cook and Allen defeated at the start. Indeed I would like to see Cook and Allen defeated at the start. If the two chaffers are determined and firm, they can do it despite the 700 delegates who were double-minded and octroyed the two chaffers unto them.

FORMER OFFICIAL ACCUSED.

Case of Robert B. Taylor, Arrested After Discovery of Bank Notes, Is Pending.

The federal grandjury was impaneled Wednesday by Justice John H. Rodgers of Fort Smith, Ark., sitting in the absence of Judge Elmer B. Adams.

One of the first matters to be taken up is the information against a former special agent of the department of the interior, who is accused of embezzlement in office and with extorting money for carrying out the duties of his office.

The conduct of a river captain will also be investigated. It is charged that he imbibed some of his crew for several days and diverted it from food and drink.

The case of Robert B. Taylor, the New York bank clerk charged with having stolen about $6,000 worth of unsigned bank notes on which he realized money in St. Louis, where he was arrested several weeks ago, will also be acted upon.

Violations of the oleomargarine law and a number of counterfeiting cases will be investigated.

The members of the grandjury are F. A. Darrow, David L. Fahey, Edward F. Foreman, William F. Powers, Henry F. Niedringhaus, S. D. Dudley, Rene Baker, W. H. Wickham, John H. Weir and J. A. White, all of Louis Evans, Kay, Troy, Mo.; Bernard Huber, Perryville, Fred A. Morris, Mexico; George H. McElroy, St. Louis; John C. Soto, Thomas Kite, Marshallville; G. O. Evans, Jr., Webster, and W. SAYS POLICEMAN SHOT HIM IN KNEE

Special Officer Suspended and Held Pending Investigation of Farmer's Charges.

Dennis Lawler, an emergency special patrolman, has been temporarily suspended, and is being held at the North Street police station pending an investigation of charges made against him in connection with the shooting of Albert R. Brown, a farmer, 55, living in the City Hospital, who was shot in one knee which he received at Bremen Avenue and Broadway Tuesday night. It is charged that the officer fired the shot which inflicted the wound while leaving a saloon at Broadway and Bremen avenues.

The witnesses say the fight started as Lawler started to leave the saloon. Lawler's gun was discharged and a bystander was hit.

Brown's wound is not serious. Lawler denies the charges.

TURN PRAIRIES INTO GROVES.

Bureau of Forestry Seeking to Interest Illinois Farmers in Timber.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 10.—R. S. Kellogg, who is connected with the Bureau of Forestry of the United States Department of Agriculture, and who has opened headquarters at Roodhouse, in Springfield seeking to interest the Illinois State Farmers' Institute, says that it is essential that the farmers of the prairie states be educated to the necessity for extension of their scanty growth.

The depletion of the forests of the East and North, he says, goes forward so rapidly that in a few years there will be insufficient timber to meet the demands of business, and unless something is done at once, the want of wood will be fully felt. In view of the rapid growth of the state, the department is anxious to interest Illinois farmers.

GOOD STORIES OF THE LATE SENATOR VEST

Why He Was Called the Little Giant—Not Orthodox Always But He Couldn't Forget Early Teaching—His Love of Dogs.

How did he obtain the sobriquet of theman to fool his wife; that his wife could not only tell him by night by his step, but sometimes could tell by it where he had been.

HE LOVED DOGS.

From the day he began to practice in 1868, although in the courts and on the stump speeching, led captive the minds of grave judges, and swayed and electrified multitudes with his wit, humor, sarcasm and eloquence, it is questionable whether he was ever more active of his versatility, his power over men, exciting the inspiration that comes only to the most brilliant orators. In 1868, Warrensburg not long after the war, which involved only the matter of damage to his dog named "Old Bruno," his raciness, eloquence and deep pathos were made interesting because in it he gave a vivid picture of his return to Kentucky and meeting the boy born in his absence, and touching portrayals of the duties, uncertainties and responsibilities of men on returning to their native land.

"I have not yet decided just where I will go to speak again," he said, "but I may be called, but somewhere about the beginning of October I will find out from the confederacy his varied experiences that will bring him back to Kentucky and meet him again. I will speak again in the fall, in October, in the Lamb's Club, and smile when the subject was mentioned to him."

"I think about the last three weeks of action and Vest again appeared after the political campaign under the name of 'The Little Giant' attached to him. The newspaper writer who, more than any other, thus designated him was Dr. A. Y. Hull, editor of the Sedalia Democrat, who came from Illinois and was as great an admirer of Stephen A. Douglas as he was of Vest. And this designation was often applied to him by the facile pen of Maj. John N. Edwards, who succeeded Dr. Hull as editor of the Sedalia Democrat.

Because of his aggressiveness, and sometimes his bitterness on the hustings, public opinion attached something of acerbity to Vest's nature; but he was a most tender and sympathetic man in his domestic and social life, and of great worth in his friendship.

His devotion to his family was always beautiful. His marriage was born of love. In the estimation of his wife he was over the most gifted and fascinating of men, and his conversation always compelled her apt attention; and though the blight of ill health attended her through life, to him she was always beautiful and charming.

HIS RELIGION.

Vest was reared under Presbyterian influences, and although he did not live his faith, in his serious moods he was never able to wholly get away from the strong theology of Calvin. Although he had at times expressed his inability to accept fully in faith the immaculate conception and divinity of Jesus of Nazareth, he always remained a member of the church of the Presbyterians. He believed in "orthodox" teaching.

He became much interested in the writing of the so-called "modern thinkers," but when he got sick and meditative he liked to hear that apostle of Calvin, Dr. John Montgomery of Pettis County. After hearing Bishop Marvin, that Sunday on the "Atonement," he said to me: "My rationalism is all undermined; it is dangerous ground."

HIS AMBITION.

What turned Vest's ambition toward the United States Senate?

One day he was examining an interesting question of constitutional limitation of power. Garland of Arkansas was then in the Senate and appearing before the Supreme Court on questions involving the validity of state constitutional enactments disfavoring and disbarring lawyers. Garland had made some statement before the supreme court touching these questions and achieved a national reputation as a lawyer. Vest dropped the book and said: "I knew Garland at Richmond. I believe I am as good as lawyer as he is and as good a talker. Why can't I go to the Senate and practice in the supreme court?" Vest had a passion for great intellectual combats and naturally sought a theater worthy of his prowess. This, coupled with his love of applause of the multitude, made him long for a broader theater of action.

FAITH AS A LAWYER.

What turned Vest's ambition toward the United States Senate?

One day he was examining an interesting question of constitutional limitation of power. Garland of Arkansas was then in the Senate and appearing before the Supreme Court on questions involving the validity of state constitutional enactments disfavoring and disbarring lawyers.

Vest had a passion for great intellectual combats and naturally sought a theater worthy of his prowess. This, coupled with his love of applause of the multitude, made him long for a broader theater of action.

HAD HIS SUPERSTITION, TOO.

One winter in Washington, when Senator Vest's wife was away, he rented a suite of rooms, and on the first night of his occupancy, a friend stopped at his room.

"My visit in this room is much more pleasant on this occasion than the last time I was here," said his friend.

HOW IS THAT?

"Well, a friend of mine hanged himself in this room last night," said his friend, and receiving no response to my knock, opened the door, for I had reason to believe he might be dead. I crept up to him, and on coming just over the spot where you are now sitting."

In relating the story, Mr. Vest said: "I went to the window and looked down to the low's visit that he had never come. They were the coziest kind of quarters and I turned to the chandelier. I saw that the man, hanging by his neck from the chandelier, haunted my mind, and I could not get out of bed without the light set in bed the picture became more and more real. I imagined that the body was dangling right at the foot of my bed and swaying to and fro on the footboard. Finally I got out of bed and lit the gas and went down to the Wardwell Hotel."

It is said that Mr. Vest paid the land-lady full month's rent the next day, but he never again went near the house.

It is said that the chamber maid got the room, telling the story to trick the Senator out of his comfortable quarters.

A TOUCH OF SARCASM.

While the war revenue bill was under discussion in the Senate, Mr. Vest was compelled to go home and take to his bed. He was not well, and was most exhausted. At such times he was not apt to admit callers to his room, but one day he received a call from a manufacturer from St. Louis, who had gone there to secure a hearing in regard to the internal revenue proposed on a certain bill.

"I can't see you long tonight," said Senator Vest. "I'm nearly dead."

"Why, you're looking fairly well," said the St. Louis man.

"Oh, I probably won't live till morning," said the Senator. "What were they trying to do when they sent you here?" he continued.

"Cafferty was making a speech about something I don't know what," said the St. Louis man.

"I was about sugar," said Vest. "I'll never live till the end of it—but a good word never repeated the argument or sentiment; the idea was complete and the creation finished."

GENIUS FOR EPIGRAM.

The countless number of his acerbities are as meteors that shoot across the sky, or stars that fall; they blazed and went out forever, because for the instant they so dazzled the mind that he made no mistake of them. His repartees were so brilliant, when struck at, the venom of his tongue was to "terrify that few lawyers ventured upon severity with him; but his repartees for good measure, for indulgence pass even at his own expense. In the trial of Col. Warren of Lexington, Mo., for murder, his defense attorney, Vest, a part of the defendant's evidence was to show that the deceased, his son-in-law, had been a drunkard. You will see, he said, the wife of the deceased testified that on a certain night she recognized her husband lurking about with a bottle of whisky, and she knew him by his walk, although the night was dark and he was distant by a hundred yards. Tilton Davis, who was testifying for the prosecution, claimed that she recognized the deceased from his walk, and that it was a hard thing for a man to fool his wife; that his wife could not only tell him by night by his step, but sometimes could tell by it where he had been.

HE LOVED DOGS.

From the day he began to practice in 1868, although in the courts and on the stump speeching, led captive the minds of grave judges, and swayed and electrified multitudes with his wit, humor, sarcasm and eloquence, it is questionable whether he was ever more active of his versatility, his power over men, exciting the inspiration that comes only to the most brilliant orators. In 1868, Warrensburg not long after the war, which involved only the matter of damage to his dog named "Old Bruno," his raciness, eloquence and deep pathos were made interesting because in it he gave a vivid picture of his return to Kentucky and meeting the boy born in his absence, and touching portrayals of the duties, uncertainties and responsibilities of men on returning to their native land.

"I have not yet decided just where I will go to speak again," he said, "but I may be called, but somewhere about the beginning of October I will find out from the confederacy his varied experiences that will bring him back to Kentucky and meet him again. I will speak again in the fall, in October, in the Lamb's Club, and smile when the subject was mentioned to him."

"I think about the last three weeks of action and Vest again appeared after the political campaign under the name of 'The Little Giant' attached to him. The newspaper writer who, more than any other, thus designated him was Dr. A. Y. Hull, editor of the Sedalia Democrat, who came from Illinois and was as great an admirer of Stephen A. Douglas as he was of Vest. And this designation was often applied to him by the facile pen of Maj. John N. Edwards, who succeeded Dr. Hull as editor of the Sedalia Democrat.

Because of his aggressiveness, and sometimes his bitterness on the hustings, public opinion attached something of acerbity to Vest's nature; but he was a most tender and sympathetic man in his domestic and social life, and of great worth in his friendship.

His devotion to his family was always beautiful. His marriage was born of love. In the estimation of his wife he was over the most gifted and fascinating of men, and his conversation always compelled her apt attention; and though the blight of ill health attended her through life, to him she was always beautiful and charming.

His love of dogs.

GUS THOMAS WILL STUMP FOR PARKER

Former St. Louisan Thinks It's a Good Thing for Everybody to Air Views.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—During the present campaign several theatrical men will do what they can in the line of stump speaking and these will labor chiefly in the districts with which they are most familiar. About the first of October we shall see them making preparations.

Augustus Thomas is to take the stump for Judge Parker this fall, and will lend his oratorical efforts to electing the candidate from Esopus. Mr. Thomas was encountered yesterday escaping from the Lamb's Club, and smiled when the subject was mentioned to him.
